

Non-Profit 911: What's Next?

Implications of the Economic Realities

AGENDA

- 8:30 Registration Opens, Coffee
- 9:00 – 9:15 Welcome and Program Overview
Tim Kime, Leadership Greater Washington
- 9:15 – 9:45 The Current Financial Environment:
How We Got Here and Where We are Headed
Dr. Alice Rivlin, Senior Fellow, Economic Studies and Director, Greater Washington Research, The Brookings Institution
- 9:45 – 10:15 Panel Discussion: Sector Vantage Points
*Moderator: Robert McCartney, Columnist, The Washington Post
Glen O’Gilvie, Center for Nonprofit Advancement
Dave Robertson, Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments
Tamara Copeland, Washington Regional Association of Grantmakers
Terri Freeman, The Community Foundation for the National Capital Region
Jim Dinegar, Greater Washington Board of Trade*
- 10:30 – 11:45 Responding to the Reality: Best Practices
*Chuck Bean, The Non-Profit Roundtable of Greater Washington
Bill Hanbury, United Way of the National Capital Area*
- 10:30 – 11:45 Conversation with Non-Profit Leaders: “Challenging our Thinking”
Facilitated by Josh Mintz
- 11:45 – 12:00 Closing Comments
Tim Kime, Leadership Greater Washington

EIGHT NEIGHBORS

1725 I Street, NW, Suite 200
Washington, DC 20006

Non-Profit 911: What's Next?

Implications of the Economic Realities

The past year has been extremely difficult for non-profit organizations and their leaders. On November 16, board members, funders, executives and other key leaders in the non-profit arena will gather to share what worked and what did not as they discuss the outlook for the months and year ahead.

Each participant will receive a report with a snapshot of how the economic downturn has affected non-profit organizations and a list of strategies for succeeding during challenging times.

Capacity is limited to 250 people, so register immediately.

Monday, November 16, 2009

8:30 AM - 12:00 PM

True Reformer Building
1200 U Street, NW, Washington, DC 20009

To register, contact Ayann Johnson at (202) 263-4783 or ajohnson@cfncr.org.

ORGANIZED BY EIGHT NEIGHBORS

